

A New Design Studio in Canary Wharf

by Marc Tremblay for Gee Living London

Have you ever bought a piece of furniture and sadly, when you unpack it at home, that same piece doesn't shine as much as it did the first time you saw it in the store and fell in love with it? Putting things together and making sure it reflects your inner personality while embracing your existing pieces is not everyone's cup of tea. Trust me on that...

Some people ask for a second opinion with a trusted friend (red flag) whilst others will do what should be done: seek professional advice with custom project design and management by an interior designer.

This is what we do at Gee Living London. We make sure that your space looks alive and vibrant by creating an inviting and modern environment for you to live your life in.

Because we like to do things differently, Gee Living has its design studio within its own retail showroom in Canary Wharf. That being said, we are able to source everything the project, big or small, will need directly from the manufacturer and pass the savings to the client while cutting the high street mark-up. It's like a one stop, hassle-free visit with savings. At Gee Living you have more than 7000 ft² of showroom, ideal to browse and explore the latest collections of your most beloved European designer furniture and home decor brands (Calligaris, Porada, Cattelan Italia, Arketipo, Flos, LEMA s.p.a. and much more).

But how does it work for you? After an initial consultation and project evaluation where the designer will take the time to understand and listen to your taste and needs, everything will be built on computer so you can easily visualize the concept of the proposed design. At this stage, our most important priority is your understanding and satisfaction of the direction of the project. It is the most stress free solution you could offer to yourself as everything is managed at one place and coordinated by your designer. We like making things easy and efficient for our clients. This is why Gee Living is delighted to offer to its valued clients a white glove service, from the first consultation until the final touch of the installation and home staging at your property. Case goods furniture, upholsteries, window treatments, artworks, home décor accessories, wallpapers, rugs: everything is personally sourced through our hundreds of suppliers and workshops, and all installed at your property by our professional fitters and maintenance team.

So, you are thinking of refurbishing a room (or two, ideally) and want to assure your friends and family will say 'wow' when they come over? The Design Studio at Gee Living is ready to help. After all, we all want the best for our home, right? And how good does it sound when someone says: "my designer did that..."

Marc Tremblay is from Montréal (Québec, Canada). Since childhood, he was fascinated by arts, design and the artistic approach of architectural interiors.

He pursued his education at LaSalle College, the most important fashion, art and design school in Canada. After working in Montréal and London, he gained a lot of international experience and a very rich knowledge of how to manipulate and personalize trends and build projects with passion and emotion.
